Kingthorpe Manor Farm is a substantial, Grade II listed farmhouse, standing in 1.67 acres (sts) with a series of outbuildings, three lodges (available by separate negotiation) and a pond. The principal residence is laid out across three stories and over 3300 sq ft; with the ground floor providing four versatile reception spaces alongside a bright conservatory, kitchen and snug with platform-style cinema space above. Three double bedrooms to the first floor all enjoy individual shower facilities while the second floor provides two further bedrooms including a master with dressing room and en suite bathroom.

Historic features are throughout the property, including twin priest holes off one chimney breast, and bedroom doors set with internal latches and supports for bar buttresses –alluding to a past of Catholic ownership in times of religious persecution. Further period features including exposed beams, wood floors, and 18th or 19th Century 'modernisations' including adding Georgian-style reception rooms: with wall panelling and pine surrounds to the beams. There are wood sash windows throughout, largely slide-shut.
