THE LAND AND BUILDINGS

From the public road, the property has a right of way over a privately owned track. Through a gated entrance, the vehicular access continues into the property's boundary leading directly into the farmyard.

Brook House Farm has the advantage of a very generous range of agricultural buildings which provide space for housing livestock as well as machinery and fodder storage. Two steel portal frame sheds sit adjacent to each other in an 'L' shape at the north of the farmyard. Further versatile space is offered by a Dutch barn with large lean-to. There are multiple other smaller outbuildings, which would benefit from some repairs or replacement, and would offer perfect storage for tools and equipment; essential for any functioning small holding. A traditional stone barn lies to the northeast of the house.

The farm is ringfenced and in all extends to 24.05 acres (9.73 hectares). The land rises to the west, reducing in gradient at the top and is predominantly grass which is suitable for grazing livestock; with some improvement it would allow for increased productivity. An area of woodland runs parallel to the track and a source of natural water supplies the land. Near to the house there are some smaller paddocks which also feature a pond.
