Orchard House

The principal residence at Orchard House is a characterful five-bedroom sandstone property, with origins understood to date back to circa 1740. The house has been thoughtfully adapted and extended over time to provide well-balanced accommodation, combining period features with modern living arrangements.

The ground floor centres around an open plan kitchen and dining area, forming the heart of the home. The bespoke kitchen is fitted with high quality oak cabinetry topped with granite work surfaces, offering both durability and a traditional aesthetic. An adjoining utility area provides additional storage and practical workspace. The dining area flows seamlessly into a light-filled garden room, where a solid fuel burner creates a focal point. There is direct access onto the gardens, allowing for an easy connection between indoor and outdoor living.

Further reception space is well considered. A study area, with an adjoining cloakroom, leads through to the entrance hallway. From here, access is provided to a snug featuring original exposed timber wall beams, offering a more intimate sitting area. In addition, there is a separate cinema room, equipped with a projector and remote-controlled drop-down 9.1 Keff surround sound speakers, creating a dedicated space for entertainment.

On the first floor, the principal bedroom suite is well appointed, incorporating fitted wardrobes and a freestanding roll-top bath within the bedroom space, alongside an adjoining en suite shower room. A guest bedroom also benefits from en suite facilities and fitted wardrobes. Three further bedrooms provide flexible accommodation, suitable for family use, guests or additional study space.

The main family bathroom is finished to a very high standard, including a large free-standing bath, bespoke vanity unit and a concealed television set within a tiled wall, combining practicality with a discreet modern feature.

The property benefits from an oil-fired central heating system which combines underfloor heating with bespoke stainless steel radiators ensuring year round comfort. The system is complimented by solid fuel burning stoves in the garden room and snug, ideal places to enjoy cosy winter evenings.

Overall, the house offers a considered blend of historic character and contemporary convenience, arranged to suit modern family living while retaining its period origins.
