3.244 acres of mixed woodland at Llwyn Y Gelli which is situated on fertile soils close to the town of Chirk.

DESCRIPTION

Woodland at Llwyn Y Gelli of 2.244 is situated on generally fertile soils which are free-draining into the valley floor. An excellent opportunity has arisen to purchase a piece of woodland which is fertile and productive. The land is suitable for a range of uses with interest from amenity, carbon and future environment schemes of particular interest. Management of the wood has been enabled by the construction of access tracks into the woodland. Stocking is variable. A sensitive management plan will improve the woodland and release the amenity and wildlife potential.

Llwyn Y Gelli woodland is an attractive hillside, multi purpose woodland with both amenity and natural capital value with some good quality timber. The wood offers an appealing small investment opportunity from the nature of the attractive location. Natural capital value adds non-timber activities such as carbon sequestration and biodiversity net gain potential opportunities which Llwyn Y Gelli woodland offers to cater for the increasing demand.

The woodland is a mixed planted woodland, which is situated within the Chirk Valley. Access into the woodland is through a private track using right of access to the north of the woodland.

The area is steeped in heritage, with the nationally renowned "Oak at the Foot of the Dead", an ancient tree marking the site of the Battle of Crogan, which located nearby. This region is celebrated for its veteran oaks, with the famous Pontfadog Oak, once thought to be the oldest in the UK, having also stood close by.

The woodland lies just two miles from Chirk, the iconic viaduct and aqueduct, both part of the UNESCO World Heritage Site. Offa's Dyke runs only half a mile from the wood, offering a direct link to centuries of border history. Just beyond lies the Dee Valley and the popular town of Llangollen, offering breathtaking scenery and further historical interest.

Situated in the picturesque Ceiriog Valley – described by former Prime Minister David Lloyd George as "a little bit of heaven on earth" – the location is rich in natural beauty and cultural heritage. It's also a hub for outdoor activities, with access to national cycle routes and hidden historic green paths ideal for walking, yet to be discovered by the wider public.
