The setting is undoubtedly one of Holly Oak Farm’s defining features. The house sits wonderfully within its plot, surrounded by exceptionally pretty wraparound gardens which have clearly been lovingly established and tended over many years. Sweeping lawns are framed by an abundance of mature trees, Meandering pathways lead through different areas of the grounds.

A delightful ornamental pond with water lilies creates another beautiful focal point, complemented by a covered garden seating area from which to sit and enjoy the surroundings. Mature trees provide natural screening and privacy, whilst glimpses towards the neighbouring fields reinforce the property’s peaceful rural atmosphere. It is a garden that feels wonderfully established and secluded, yet has plenty of open lawn and usable space.

Beyond the formal gardens lies the adjoining paddock of approximately 1.21 acres, Together with the substantial open-fronted agricultural building, detached double garage and generous parking, this creates an appealing proposition for purchasers seeking a country lifestyle, additional land or smallholding potential.

Holly Oak Farm retains an abundance of individual character and now presents an exciting opportunity for its next owner to sympathetically enhance the property whilst preserving everything that makes it so distinctive.

Internally, original and character features include the traditional entrance porch and hallway, exposed ceiling timbers, leaded glazing and a striking circular feature window overlooking the gardens. The generous open-plan lounge/dining room is a particularly characterful space, featuring a substantial brick fireplace with a recently installed multi-fuel stove, together with a walk-in bay window enjoying views towards the surrounding countryside.

The existing layout also provides considerable scope for a purchaser to reimagine the ground floor. The kitchen directly adjoins the study/family room, presenting the potential to combine the two and create a substantial open-plan dining kitchen/family room, subject to the necessary structural requirements and consents, whilst retaining the separate open-plan lounge/dining room.

An additional feature is the cellar, which is presently accessed externally. There is also a concealed internal entrance beneath the existing floor covering which is not currently accessible, potentially allowing internal access to be reinstated in the future, subject to further investigation and any necessary works.

Three bedrooms and the family bathroom occupy the first floor, with attractive outlooks towards the gardens and neighbouring fields adding to the property’s rural appeal.

Full of warmth, character and possibility, Holly Oak Farm offers much more than a traditional country home. The combination of its breathtaking established gardens, approximately 1.53-acre holding, 1.21-acre paddock, outbuildings and peaceful setting within Gratton Village creates an increasingly rare opportunity, with further potential to reconfigure or extend the existing accommodation, subject to the necessary planning permissions and consents.
